The vital importance of water and food in third century

In belief of many international theoreticians, increasing prices of poultry and dairy products cast a negative shadow on long period objects in third century. It's a fact that correct distribution of food between world's population is as important as safeguarding the authority and poverty.

So the essential rule of water will be revealed, For production of farming and dairy products is highly related to this vital matter.

Though we have gained recently technical, academic and reaching improvements in field of production quality and green houses, but the jointed rule of water and soil is again effective. Periodic scarcity of water, much demand of food, limiting of water and soil's sources, economical crisis, .... All to further automatically effect on food prices.
